RED TANKS PENETRATE VITAL NAZI BARRIER

Prussian Troops Being Diverted To Help Stem Soviets

BY ROGER D. GREENE
Associated Press War Editor

Soviet tanks were officially reported to have broken into the vital 40-mile German barrier northwest of Stalingrad today, the 45th day of bloody siege, and Axis sources declared the Russians were now beginning to stream back across the Don river.

A Soviet dispatch said the lunge by Russian tanks into the German left flank had forced the invaders to divert veteran Prussian troops, the elite of Adolf Hitler's armies, from other fronts in an effort to stem the assault.

These dispatches said the Germans, pouring more and more men into the struggle, had lost thousands of troops, hundreds of trucks and armored cars and scores of tanks without compensating gains during the past three days.

Hitler's high command asserted that Russian forces encircled northwest of Stalingrad had been "split up into two parts and annihilated."

The German Transcaucasian Agency said the encirclement was executed in the suburb of Orlovka, which the German command declared several days ago had been captured in an enveloping move. The size of the trapped Soviet contingent was not disclosed.

"Also, in Stalingrad, the enemy had to give up further terrain in heavy struggles," a Nazi communiqué said.

Transcaucasian said a large block of houses in the northern part of the city had been wrested from the defenders in a fierce fight.

Against these German claims, Soviet headquarters announced confidently: "Our troops are holding their positions."

More important, the Red armies were declared to be hacking into the German left flank above the Volga, metropolis, over-running Nazi positions studded with half-buried tanks.

The northwest barrier, stretching between the Don and the Volga, has been frequently cited by the German high command as guarding the main Nazi siege armor.

A bulletin from Red army headquarters failed to indicate the extent of the Soviet tank thrust, but reported: "Northwest of Stalingrad, tank crews broke into enemy positions and destroyed tanks dug into the ground, eight guns and five ammunition trucks, and wiped out about 250 Germans."

A Berlin radio broadcast, heard in London, said Russian troops surging back across the Don-Volga corridor had bridged the Don with pontoons and regained footholds on the west bank.

If true, this would indicate that Marshal Semion Timoshenko's relief offensive might seriously threaten the long-drawn German supply lines and possibly even jeopardize the whole Nazi siege effort by an encirclement sweep.

Inside Stalingrad, the city's reinforced defenders beat off every German attack in the last 24 hours, (Turn to Page Eleven)

Seven Adrift On Four-Man Raft Rescued

BY CHARLES McMURTRY

With the Pacific Fleet, Sept. 27—(Delayed)—(P)—Seven army fliers, rescued from the South Pacific after drifting on a four-man raft for seven days, saw two members of their B-17 bomber crew die of exposure. The rescued included Sergeant Constantine Rusevsky, 23, engineer, of Shenandoah, Pa.

"If we had to lose a bomber, we were damn well glad to get rid of that one," the survivors said today. "We called it 'Spider' because it was hung together with thread. It was one of the first flying fortresses."

The men existed on a sip of water, rationed morning and night, and a bite of chocolate daily.

They were surprised to learn later from a news correspondent that a shark had ripped the bottom of the rubber raft end-to-end, but fortunately had not pierced the air compartment. The fliers knew the bottom was torn, but had no idea of the extent of the damage.

Corporal Lucien de Amour, gunner, of Beverly, Mass., crazed by his suffering, leaped from the raft the sixth night and perished. Corporal James Hoesegood, 33, assistant gunner (no address), died of exposure and illness three hours later.

The old flying fortress left its southwest Pacific base September 1 with two other bombers, and at the turning point in its mission the cylinder head of the port engine flew out.

Keeping Open Supply Lines Stalls Push

Allied Troops In New Guinea Encounter Same Trouble As Invaders

MORESBY IS RELIEVED

General MacArthur's Headquarters, Australia, Oct. 8—(P)—Allied troops, having driven the Japanese back across the summit of New Guinea's Owen Stanley mountains, found themselves facing today the same supply difficulties which the invaders encountered in their unsuccessful push toward Port Moresby.

A communiqué from General MacArthur's headquarters said that "almost insuperable complications in maintenance of supply lines" were progressively slowing down the Allies and raised the question of how far they might attempt to pursue the retreating Japanese.

The bulletin declared the Allies had suffered practically no losses in driving the Japanese from their advance positions near Ioribaiwa, 32 miles airplane from Port Moresby.

The supply problem was emphasized by Australian Army Minister Francis Forde, who returned from a visit to the front with high praise for the Allied troops.

"Arm chair strategists should see the Owen Stanley country through which our troops are advancing and should see the long, wearying mountain roads over which supplies must be hauled," Forde said.

Today's communiqué, which was devoted vitally to the situation in the Owen Stanley sector, did not mention the Japanese.

Governor James, chairman of the Authority, the state's building agency, recently said negotiations with the army to take over the $3,000,000 institution, had been resumed after a breakdown last spring.

The government previously contended it could build a new hospital cheaper than the rental price for Butler, an 800-bed hospital, built in 1937 but never opened.

Philadelphian, Oct. 8—(P)—Albert I. Speidel, 41-year-old former secretary of the Jenkintown Building and Loan Association, began a year and a day prison sentence today on a charge of impersonating a lieutenant colonel in the U. S. Army.

Speidel already is serving a five-month term on a charge of wearing an officer's uniform. The sentences are to run concurrently. He also has pleaded guilty to a charge of embezzling $60,000 from the loan association. Sentence on this count has been deferred.

Indianapolis Gap, Oct. 8—(P)—Kenneth S. Thomas, 42, former Harrisburg and Philadelphia newspaperman, died of a heart attack last night while presiding as master of ceremonies at a soldiers' entertainment at the military post here.

Logan has called for dismissal of 126 mercantile and inheritance tax workers appointed by Ross, saying they are unnecessary. Ross, the Democrats' candidate for governor, said the employees' efficiency had boosted collections. Some 80 such employees, who were dismissed, appealed to the Claims Board. Acting on the case of one of them, Ellwood T. Baumann, an inheritance tax appraiser, the Claims Board approved an appeal for $424 in back pay.

Attorney General Claude T. Reno held the board could not allow that claim and told the board Logan had authority to dismiss the employees involved in the dispute. The Claims Board refused to accept Reno's advice.

"In view of the attorney general's opinion, we can't do anything now," said Logan of the board's decision. "We can't make any compliance."

Washington, Oct. 8—(P)—The nation's newspapers won today a tribute from Elmer Davis, director of the Office of War Information, for their "wholehearted cooperation" in the work of spreading the truth about United States war aims and accomplishments.

Davis's opinion was expressed earlier this week before the house appropriations committee when he asked for $26,990,000 to finance the OWI's use of propaganda psychology to help win the war. His testimony was made public today. The committee approved a flat $25,000,000 for OWI.

"Are you finding that you are getting the wholehearted cooperation of the newspapers of the country?" inquired Rep. Lindlow (D-Ind.).

"Yes, indeed," responded Davis.

London, Oct. 8—(P)—The British will manage German prisoners at noon Saturday unless the Germans remove the bonds which they placed today on the hands of British prisoners captured at Dieppe. It was announced officially tonight.

The decision was announced in a war office communiqué which said: "The German government, having put into operation the illegal action threatened in their communiqué, the war office announces that unless the German government releases prisoners captured at Dieppe from their chains, an equal number of German prisoners of war will be manacled and chained up from 12 noon Saturday."

It made clear that this was specifically a counter-measure against Axis prisoners now in British prison camps, to be taken unless the Germans rescinded their order, but that Britain still would not countenance the shackling of prisoners who might be captured in the field.

Only a few hours had elapsed since the Berlin radio announced that the British captives—mostly Canadians—were manacled at noon today. The announcement called it reprisal for similar treatment of captured Nazis, a claim which the British have vigorously denied.

The German action of fettering prisoners "is expressly forbidden by article II of the Geneva convention governing humane treatment of prisoners," a British government statement said.

The statement reiterated Britain's declaration that the government (Turn to Page Eleven)

Harrisburg, Oct. 8—(P)—Dr. Edward B. Logan, secretary of revenue, said today he would disregard an order of the General Claims Board granting back pay to a tax collection worker whom he ordered dismissed in a controversy, with Auditor General F. Clair Ross.

Britain Threatens To Take Similar Measures If Germany Persists

London, Oct. 8—(P)—The British will manage German prisoners at noon Saturday unless the Germans remove the bonds which they placed today on the hands of British prisoners captured at Dieppe. It was announced officially tonight.

SIX BILLION REQUESTED IN DEFENSE BILL

Appropriation Measure On Floor Of House Swells Cost To More Than Six Times First War

MOST OF IT FOR NAVY

A $6,236,956,621 appropriation bill, swelling the country's cost of arms to more than six times the bill for World War No. 1, was sent to the house floor today with approximately 90 per cent of the new expenditures earmarked for the navy.

In approving the omnibus second supplementary national defense bill, the house appropriations committee authorized 14,611 new naval planes to complement an unprecedented aircraft carrier building program now under way.

Simultaneously, the bill would furnish fresh financial reserves for the war projects of a dozen different government agencies, rubber for the war machine to roll on, air lanes to carry the Allies' message of victory, homes for war workers.

The $5,598,974,209 set apart for the navy would raise its spending credits for the fiscal year of 1943 to $30,827,982,282, while the measure as a whole would increase the total voted for defense and war since 1940 to $220,000,000,000.

A total of $2,852,000,000 was voted to finance construction of the 14,611 naval planes and to help meet the president's production goal of 30,000 planes this year and 125,000 in 1943 for both the army and navy.

In discussing those goals, Under Secretary of the Navy James V. Forrestal told the committee that the number of man-hours required to build big planes had been cut (Turn to Page Eleven)

Stabilization Board Filled By President

BYRNES IS SWORN IN

Washington, Oct. 8—(P)—James F. Byrnes, who gave up a lifetime job on the supreme court to become director of economic stabilization, assumed today a status equivalent to that of a cabinet member.

Byrnes took the oath of office for his new position at the White House last night, and learned then for the first time that his salary would be $15,000 a year. That is $5,000 less than he received as an associate justice, but as much as any cabinet member makes.

Like Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the War Production Board, Byrnes expected to attend cabinet meetings. He was sworn in just after announcing that President Roosevelt had appointed the board which will help him control the economy of an entire nation for the duration of the war, with the objective of holding down living costs and preventing inflation.

Two representatives each from labor, agriculture and management accepted membership on the board. They were:

Labor: Philip Murray, president of the CIO, and William Green, president of the AFL.

Agriculture: Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, and James G. Patton, president of the Farmers Cooperative Union.

Management: Ralph E. Flanders, president of the Jones & Lamson Machine Company, Springfield, Vt., and Eric A. Johnston, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

They will serve with eight government officials previously named to the board in a presidential order putting the new stabilization program into operation.

Philadelphia, Oct. 8—(P)—A man described as an admirer of Adolf Hitler died last night, three days before his scheduled induction into the army, after swallowing seven vials of toothache remedy, Deputy Coroner Harry Torchon reported.

Torchon identified the man as Henry Stowe, 46, and said his landlady, Mrs. Freda Gilder, told him Stowe often praised Hitler for "the wonderful things he is doing in Europe."

Stowe told her yesterday, according to Torchon, that the army "won't get me now."

TO BUILD ADDITION
Pittsburgh, Oct. 8—(P)—Lieut. Col. Herbert D. Vogel, district head of the U. S. Army engineers, disclosed "an addition will be built to the present Keystone Ordnance works near Meadville. He said censorship regulations prevent disclosure of the details, including the exact site.

Within the next ten days a group of young men drawn from the towns and countryside of this county will leave for an induction camp where they will be transformed into soldiers. They will be given a farewell at the station and friends and relatives will gather. Each boy will be handed a carton of cigarettes, lunch will be given and photographers will take their pictures. It will be a heart touching sight to see mothers kiss their sons, farewells, sweethearts embrace their boys and home ties really broken.

What a wonderful thing it would be if some person could mount a baggage truck at the station and address the boys something like this: "Boys you are going out to fight! We stay-at-homes are back of you. It's a fine gesture to give you cigarettes and lunch but let me tell you boys that for every one of you who are about to board the train we have gathered and have sent rolling to the steel mills ten tons of scrap. We know that cigarettes are soon smoked up and that weapons they don't amount to a pinch of snuff so we have gathered up steel and iron, silk and burlap bags and will see that you have the weapons with which to fight and with which to preserve your lives. We are going to continue to back you up 100%. We have the scrap rolling, we are going to take the rationing of meat and foods and you boys may rest assured that our promise to you is going to be fully carried out."

That would bring the cheers from the boys. Stiffen their shoulders and strengthen their hearts. Why don't we do it? We can and will.

The Times-Mirror, the Schools of the county and Library theater have united in an effort to get in the scrap. Already about 200 tons of scrap have been gathered and amount shows we have been woe-

Official Organization Standard Will Be Presented To Local Squadron

OFFICIAL STAFF HERE

Approximately 50 members of Squadron 315-3, Civil Air Patrol with headquarters at Warren, will be inspected and officially inducted into service at the Warren Airport, Sunday at 2:30 p. m. by Captain Clifford Ball, of Pittsburgh, Commander of Group 315.

Captain Ball will be accompanied by members of his group staff and, in addition to the regular ceremony, will present the local squadron with its official organizational standard. In case of inclement weather the induction ceremony will be held in the State Armory at the time designated.

A guard detail of the second platoon Co. A, Third Regiment, Pennsylvania Reserve, Defense Corps under command of Lieutenant Arthur Dickinson will assist in the ceremonies and an effort is being made to secure the services of a local band for the occasion.

The squadron is composed of civilian flyers and other personnel interested in aviation from Warren County and from Corry. Headquarters Flight is stationed at Warren, Flight A at Youngsville and Flight B at Corry. The members of the Squadron have been undergoing (Turn to Page Eleven)

New York, Oct. 8—(P)—Fordham University reported today that its seismograph recorded an earthquake of moderate intensity last night about 2,400 miles from New York in an undetermined direction. The shocks were reported at 11:09:43 o'clock (EST) and 11:15:21 o'clock.

Whatever advantage was gained by the invasion was more than offset, naval circles believed, by the enemy casualties in ships and planes.

American submarines and planes sank 13 vessels including a cruiser, six destroyers, a warship, identified as either a cruiser or destroyer, two minesweepers, a troop (Turn to Page Eleven)

CHILD DIES AFTER HE IS BITTEN BY A SNAKE

Harrisburg, Oct. 8—(P)—A three-year-old Perry County boy died last night in a Harrisburg hospital a day after he was bitten by what Dr. Earl H. Doors Closed To Public In Rubber Probe

Washington, Oct. 8—(P)—A senate agriculture subcommittee closed its doors to the public today shortly after Major Wendell Dove appeared to testify on South American natural rubber resources "with the full approval of the war department."

Chairman Gillette (D-Iowa) decided to change the hearing from a public to a secret session a few minutes after Major Dove told reporters his superiors had authorized use of his prepared statement, copies of which he had readily for release.

Gillette did not disclose the other information which he said "made it advisable" to close the hearing to the public.

Senator Thomas (D-Okla.) had told reporters last night he would request an executive session to protect Dove "from criticism" but the army officer said he thought objection to public testimony had been removed by war department clearance of his statement "in its entirety."

Thomas said Dove was the man he told the committee last week had information that "all or a substantial part" of United States' rubber needs could be obtained in South America. He said Dove had spent 15 years in South America.

Store Clerks Urged To Go Back On Jobs

Harrisburg, Oct. 8—(P)—The door was open today for striking and suspended state liquor store employees to go back to their jobs without fear of "reprisals."

"We may know by tomorrow if they are ready to agree," Chairman Frederick T. Gelder of the Liquor Control Board said after a conference with the clerks' representatives.

As the conferees met, however, the strike spread to four more counties—Northampton, Mercer, Butler and Lehigh.

Gelder estimated that 200 of the state's 579 stores were closed. Other areas affected are Beaver and Washington counties and the Philadelphia and Pittsburgh metropolitan areas.

At Pittsburgh, Eugene Mellich, secretary of the Allegheny County Retail Dealers Association, said the group was asking Governor James to intervene.

"Dealers are caught in the middle," he said.

A growing liquor shortage was reported in Pittsburgh and supplies in some smaller taprooms was exhausted.

The work stoppage began Saturday in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh. The clerks tried to return Monday but the state had ordered the stores to remain closed.

Clerks, now earning from $1.200 the first year to $1,380 the fourth, seek a 20 per cent wage hike.

George Montgomery and Maureen O'Hara in "TEN GENTLEMEN FROM WEST POINT"

At the Library Theatre Friday and Saturday

A little known, but thrilling story of West Point has been gloriously brought to the screen in 20th Century-Fox's action-packed adventure film, "Ten Gentlemen from West Point," which opens Friday and Saturday at the Library Theatre.

Starring George Montgomery, Maureen O'Hara and John Sutton, the film has a patriotic appeal that is bound to thrill every American. It's a rousing successor to "To the Shores of Tripoli," and it zooms through its paces without a hitch.

"Ten Gentlemen from West Point" is the story of the valorous cadets who made the West Point of today possible. Against the stirring, breathless background of the Point of one hundred and forty years ago, the star-spangled film authentically depicts the adventures of the first graduating class, on whose record depends the very life of the Academy.

The entire campaign is to be waged between now and October 16, with final reports due at the close of that day.

RODE BIKE DOWNSTAIRS

Herbie Gross was taken to his home by police yesterday following a tumble down the stairway at the Berry barber shop, Pennsylvania avenue, west. The lad was riding his bicycle and rode it down the stairs with resultant damage to a screen door and his wheel. The lad escaped any serious hurts.

GUM GROWING SCARCE

To the list of things that are growing scarce must be added chewing gum. The importation of chicle which is the prime ingredient in gum is meeting with trouble due to more essential articles being carried in the bottoms at sea. Gum vending machines in defense plants have the first call on gum and the days of the "three for a dime" are at an end.

GIRL SCOUTS NAMED

The Pittsfield troop of Girl Scouts is one of the proudest in Pennsylvania today, since it has been designated by the Civilian Defense Council to act as air raid messenger service group for that community. First girls in the county to be so honored. It is understood the designation came about because of lack of sufficient Boy Scout personnel in that community.

RELIEF MEETING

There was a good attendance yesterday at the meeting of Warren Relief Association directors, held at Four Winds, summer home of Mrs. J. P. Rogers. Mrs. E. H. Ley was in charge in the absence of the president, Mrs. Paul Stewart, and reports presented included a number of plans for the winter activities. Mrs. Arthur Cobb, reporting for the Relief rooms on Liberty street, showed five transients had been assisted, 559 pieces of clothing and 56 pairs of shoes distributed.

There's a 562 East Indian State, baby no bigger than a plantation.

Many Visitors At Exchange Club Meeting

Eighty-five people, including visitors from Erie, Bradford, and Toledo, Ohio, were present in the Y. W. C. A. last evening when the charter meeting of the Exchange Club of Warren was held, with Osborne Crafts, representative of the National Exchange Club, the principal speaker.

Osborne presented the charter to the president of the local club, following an address after the dinner. There were officers present from Bradford, the sponsoring unit, and from Erie.

Music for the dinner was played by Merrill Jordan, with Pat Harvey acting as master of ceremonies and chairman of the program committee.

Other members of the committee were Todd Siggins, John Culbertson, Howard Lammon, Dr. R. A. Gerrety, and George Irvin.

Representatives of the Kiwanis club were present and a floral piece was received from the Rotarians. The dinner was informal with wives and guests of the members attending.

After the dinner most of the members went to the Outing Club to conclude the evening with dancing. A light lunch was served at the club.

Other officers of the club are Todd Siggins, vice president; Francis Kennedy, secretary, and Horace J. Harvey, treasurer. The local group meet in Geracinos' dining room every Monday evening.

Forge Band To Play More Concerts Soon

The National Forge Band has scheduled several concerts for the month of October.

The first of these will be held in the Irvine school house at 8 p. m., Tuesday, October 13th.

On Wednesday, the 21st, they are to play at the high school gymnasium at Tidioute under the sponsorship of the Tidioute P. T. A.

Also planned is a second concert to be held in the Youngsville high school auditorium. The date for this later concert has not been set as yet, but will probably be given the last week of October.

The band has continually added to its repertoire during the past months and each concert will bring forth new and interesting musical numbers.

TIMES TOPICS

ERIE GROWING
Swollen by influx of war workers, Erie now has a population of 150,000, an increase of 30,000 since 1940, the new city directory there showed. Last year's directory listed 135,000 residents.

GUNS GO ON SCRAP
More than 100 air rifles, shotguns and rifles confiscated by police in Erie during the last few years went to the scrap pile, Roy T. McDonald, chairman of the Salvage Committee disclosed today. He said the county has collected 2,516 tons on a quota of 9,045 tons.

HAVE NEW UNIFORMS
Warrens firemen have received new uniforms. They have gone into khaki due to the fact that the blue cloth formerly used in firemen's uniforms is out for the duration. The new uniforms are very attractive but the firemen will have to return to the long red undies for the winter months.

BOMB DEMONSTRATION
October 13th, at Russell Field, under the direction of the Council of Defense Fire Chief Douglas Kropf will demonstrate methods of combating the various types of incendiary bombs and fires. The demonstration is for people in industrial plants, schools and other large buildings where the problem may be encountered. Many from all parts of the county are expected to take advantage of this opportunity to see the demonstration. Spectators are requested to enter the field from the Lexington avenue or the east gate.

FOLIAGE AT ITS BEST
Roy Patchen this morning telephoned the Times-Mirror that the foliage in the woodlands was at its best. This coincided with the announcement made some time ago by the State Forestry Department that the woodlands would have their most gorgeous coloring about October 10th. Many from Pittsburgh annually drive into Warren county to view the foliage in the national forest.

S. S. GATHERING
Missionary B. F. Armstrong announces a group meeting of union Sunday schools of Brookston, Reagan Run, Cherry Grove and Watson farm, to be held at the Brookston church Sunday, starting at 10:30 o'clock. There will be preaching services both morning and afternoon with a basket lunch at 12:30. Those coming for dinner should bring baskets, table service and own sugar. The hostess unit to provide coffee, cream, lemonade and plates. The public is invited.

EVANGELICAL RALLY
Sunday will be Rally Day in the First Evangelical church, with Bible school and worship combined at 10 a. m. Children will be baptized in this service and a nursery will be provided for small babies. It is also announced that older folks having no transportation will be called for by various men of the church who have volunteered their cars. October will be Rally Month for each class and department and large numbers are expected for both the morning service and that scheduled at 7:30 p. m.

Letters to the Editor

Editor Times-Mirror: Well, like Will Rogers, all I know is what I see in the newspaper, but I do see that up in Olean the street signs are to go into scrap. The people of Olean seemingly think it more important to win the war than to know the names of the streets.

What a difference there must be between the Olean councilmen and the Warren county commissioners! The boys in the court house have an old iron fence with hundreds of pounds of scrap in it and the way they hang onto it in the face of the dire need of the nation is causing many to feel that after election it won't be only the iron fence that is removed from about the court house. The fathers and mothers with sons also vote and it will not take a Philadelphia lawyer to figure out they will not vote for men who are letting their sons down by freezing the supply of scrap.

A Mother.

Astronomers are still mystified by the zodiacal light, a curious gleam that stretches up from the horizon in a cone-shaped display after sunset and before sunrise.

NEW BUILDING IN SERVICE

The new Mitchell building at the Warren State Hospital, named in memory of the late Harry Walter Mitchell, M. D., superintendent for many years, has been placed in service, and a group of women patients have been transferred to the unit.

An inspection of the building shows that it is unusually well lighted, ventilated, and equipped for occupational therapy and hydrotherapy, including twelve continuous baths which are used for general sedation.

This fireproof building which was erected by the General State Authority has a capacity of two hundred fifty beds. Among its unique features are the modern cafeteria in the basement, the ramp which connects the three floors and the acoustical ceiling in the various dormitories.

The new area was badly needed for the relief of congestion on the women's wards which has become overwhelming.

Eight hundred patients were admitted last year, including one hundred and fifty transfers from the Mercer County Hospital.

A bronze plaque bearing the inscription, "Harry Walter Mitchell, M. D., D.Sc., Superintendent Warren State Hospital 1912-1933. Humanitarian Administrator," has been placed in the main corridor by the Board of Trustees.

AUTUMN FOLIAGE

Autumn foliage will be at its prettiest this weekend in the woods of Warren county, according to information furnished by a reader from one of the nearby rural sections. This will be a bit of information that will be learned with interest by many citizens who enjoy strolling through the forest when they are in fall dress.

According to Secretary G. Albert Stewart, of the Department of Forests and Waters, the numerous rains during the late spring and early summer produced an abundance of leaves on the 110 tree species native to Pennsylvania and the coloration is expected to be outstanding this fall.

The scarlet of the sumacs, the deep color of the tulips, the bronze of the beech, the pink of the hornbeams, the purple and lavender of the ash, the browns and reds of the oaks, the reds and yellows of the maples, and the browns of the hickories and cucumber present a kaleidoscopic combination of colors.

The chemical process that brings about the various leaf colors of deciduous trees and shrubs in autumn is almost magical. Frosts may hasten the action but does not produce the brilliant colors. With the arrival of autumn and colder weather, the normal activities of the leaf are greatly slowed up. A thin layer of cork-like cells begin to develop at the base of each leaf stem. These cells close the pathway by which food and materials are transported to and from the leaves. This means the death of the leaf and it may occur independently of frost. When the leaf dies the green coloring which is known as chlorophyll breaks up and other pigments and chemicals become prominent and permits the yellows and browns to be seen. If there is sugar in the leaf and sunlight is available red coloration may be formed; if the cell sap is acid the leaf may turn to purple or red, and if alkaline it will assume a bluish color. A leaf may be entirely yellow, entirely brown, entirely red or show various shades of combinations of colors.

The American Legion Post at Ludlow claims an unusual record in that it has elected as commander Miss Marie Logan, who served as Army Nurse in the Philippines in the first World War. It appears that Miss Logan becomes the first woman commander of a Legion Post in the United States where all other members are men. Congratulations commander!

Warren county school kiddies, according to reports, are preparing to do a great job in gathering in scrap for Uncle Sam to enable him to keep his steel mills going. How about giving them a little boost?

Napoleon stubbed his toe on the retreat from Moscow, and it looks like Hitler may break a leg when he falls back from Stalingrad.

Calling All Kids!

Washington In Wartime

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — When Congress gets around to voting medals for this war, it ought to strike off one for one of its own — Sen. Prentiss M. Brown of St. Ignace, Mich.

Senator Brown, turning his back on personal interests—perhaps his very political future—picked up the Administration's sword and carried it through what threatened to be the most bitter legislative fight since World War II started. Senator Brown was author and sponsor of the Administration-approved anti-inflation bill.

It was filled with political dynamite. It drew the fire of the powerful farm bloc, of which Senator Brown ordinarily is a member, and in which are many of his closest friends and associates. At its inception, there was no way of telling what repercussions it would have among the farm votes.

AND Senator Brown, from the farm section of Michigan, the peninsula country, is facing reelection in November. His Republican opposition is Detroit's popular crusader against the racketer, Homer Ferguson. Senator Brown will need every farm vote he can get if he is to win. If he gave his personal interests a thought, it was not apparent in what he did or in what he said. He brought the Administration anti-inflation bill to the floor of the Senate, and he opened the debate on it in one of the most sincere and moving speeches that has been made in the Capitol chambers in months.

Man About Manhattan

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—If you can't get everything into your suitcases for the trip to New York, you can leave out the dress suits and formal gowns. You won't need them.

With the arrival of the fall season, the Rainbow Room, the Wedgewood Room of the Waldorf-Astoria, the Iridium Room of the St. Regis, Persian Room of the Plaza, the Stork, El Morocco, Monte Carlo and all the other supper spots which in the past have requested formal wear have let it be known that "for the duration" such specifications are out.

It's a good, sensible decision, and a rather democratic one. Service uniforms of any rank long ago were decreed full dress, and it would seem that civilians who are doing important war work are entitled to the same consideration. But aside from all that, in a no-holds-barred war like the one we're having, formal dress seems rather too-too.

Don't, however, show up without a necktie. You'll get a chilly stare from the man at the door. He hates no neckties.

ANOTHER thing the war has done has been to cut out a lot of cocktail parties, which I neither regret nor cheer, having long since learned to take them abroad she was forced home by the arrival of a film director or star, or the launching of a successful play, was all the excuse necessary for a cocktail party, in some club or hotel room around 5 p.m., and usually lasting until the last dog was bled.

That Senator Brown knew what he was doing was apparent only in his solemn intensity throughout that speech. He faced the scowls of his friends. He pleaded in an atmosphere of tension that he could not help but feel. He took his colleagues by the collar and shook them and begged them to see he light.

It is said that no congressman's vote is ever changed by a speech. That is probably true. The legislative machinery just doesn't work that way. But the spade-work that Senator Brown did in that address undoubtedly bore some fruit in the 82-to-0 vote by which his bill was finally passed.

IN that long Thursday afternoon session, Brown didn't smile once. Even after adjournment, his face was clouded until in the halls a weather-beaten man walked up to him and grasped his hand. "Senator, I'm a farmer, an Indiana corn and hog farmer, and by God I'm for you." It was then that Brown smiled.

Brown came to the Senate in 1936. He had served two terms in the House, before he ran for the Senate. He had been the Mackinac county prosecutor for 12 years. He had interests in banking and lake shipping.

Both in the house and senate, he has been a quiet, genial fellow, given to hard work (he's a member of six committees and chairman of the committee on claims).

The anti-inflation measure is undoubtedly the most important piece of legislation he has sponsored. His handling of it proves his years here haven't been wasted.

THIS is not to give Miss Kirsten a quick brushoff, however. She is the lyric soprano that every "Hello Girl" dreams about becoming, for Miss Kirsten not so long ago was a telephone operator in Newark, N. J., and in spite of her quick success is a quite unaffected young lady of 23, with gray-blue eyes and reddish blonde hair.

She was discovered by a New York newspaperman, who asked Miss Moore to give her a listen. Two weeks afterward Miss Moore engineered a trip to Europe for Dorothy, but after only six months abroad she was forced home by the war. Two years ago she made her debut with the Chicago Opera company, and has been moving up since. It's a career that makes every telephone operator with a good voice hope that somebody special is listening.

Sgt. Myers Give Squad Long March

The following special dispatch dated "Somewhere in Louisiana," will be of interest to many readers and friends in this section:

A husky Pennsylvania sergeant who marched his squad 24 hours without rations to rejoin his regiment was commended today by Maj. Gen. Omar N. Bradley, commanding general of the Blue Forces in the Third Army's big war-time maneuvers here on the Texas border.

Separated from his regiment

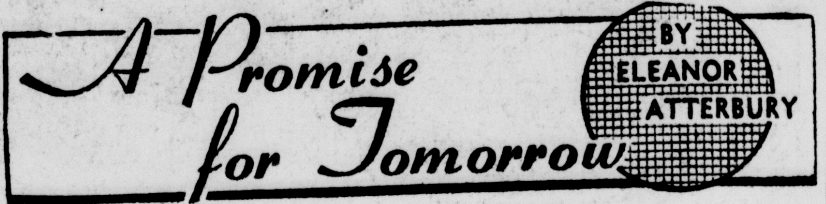

while on patrol, Sgt. Raymond Myers, of Tidouste, formed his squad of twelve on the road and set out to join his outfit, which had moved on to attack.

Although his squad carried emergency rations, Myers forbade his men to eat them. Maneuver restrictions authorized the opening of emergency rations only on order of a commissioned officer.

After bivouacking overnight, the sergeant formed his column, pushed on again on empty stomachs. At noon the next day his squad, still marching in perfect order, ran into the general's scout car.

And then, the sergeant said nothing about eating until questioned by the guard. His men got their emergency rations—plus a ride to their outfit.

Chapter 19 Converting Pete

IT was an hour before Julie got back to the ridge from which she could watch the battle raging on the mountain just across the narrow valley. She could even feel the heat of the flames as she stood, heart-sick, gnawed by a thousand fears, wondering if Pete and the rest had been trapped somewhere in that seething inferno.

Nearer and nearer crept the hungry red tide flooding up the slope, drowning the heavy shrubbery and the trunks of the pines in billowing smoke. One by one the monarchs of the forest swayed, crashed, burst into yellow flame.

Then, as if in answer to her chanted prayers, the back-fires burst along the ridge. A leaping wall of flame rushing toward its adversary, Pete was handling the dynamite all right, she rejoiced despite the imminent danger. Flames leapt up lighting the night for miles. And then a new horror smote her! This blazing beacon—on a coast trying to defend itself with darkness against a foe that struck in treachery.

The thought had been premonition of disaster. Like an answer came the dull thump of an explosion. Then another. Sounds borne toward her by wind off the ocean.

On legs that momentarily threatened mutiny, she pushed along the narrow trail, beyond it when it dipped back down into the canyon until she crawled out along a ledge and looked out onto the ocean.

The sound of another explosion—muted, like an echo.

A moment later a flare of flame—a pin-dot on the expanse of black water. Flaring larger—spreading. A ship burning. Torpedoed. Julie stared, hardly believing her eyes. Now the slim white fingers of searchlights played on the flames—on the waters above the flames. Then the light blotted out again. Only the leaping fire, the heavy canopy of black smoke.

Julie didn't know how long she knelt there on that protean rock, hating the enemy that had struck under cover of night. The forest fire had been planned, the realization came clearly, to coincide with the passing of that tanker. Silhouetted against that curtain of fire unfurled along the mountain crest, the target had been easy to hit!

The Marked Trees

AND swiftly, other facts began to add up to a horrible total. Many of the trees on Kelland's property were burning. The fire had started not far from the Kelland cabin. It burned regularly as if trees had been marked for—

She gasped, remembering the gashes she and Pete had noticed on the pines only this morning! And the dark skinned stranger on the trail. What had he do to with all this? Who was he? And where? Driven to action, Julie backed carefully off her precarious perch, groped her way back to the trail, started down. She must find Pete—or the ranger—somebody. If it weren't already too late, they must find that tall stranger.

At first, heat from across the valley drove her away from the short, downward trail. Panting, her throat parched, her cheeks hot, she turned left into trails leading away and up. But the heat pursued her. Twice she stopped to hunt for a vantage point from which to judge the course of the fire. But both times she gave up, hurried on.

Finally she saw fire break out ahead of her on the trail. Turning, she raced back along a path lit by the glow of fire. Again, she met fire.

She stopped, took stock, held panic by a tight rein. She must think fast now. Losing her head would mean losing her life. The back fires were burning along the crest. She must get over that now to avoid being caught between them.

Her decision made, she plunged into the underbrush, climbed straight up the steep slope of the mountain. Branches clutched at her, tore at her clothes, whacked her viciously across the face. But she fought on, steadily ignoring the panic that clamored like a tocsin within her. No time now to listen to fears!

Eternities later she broke through to a trail that led her safely over the crest, into the teeth of the strong wind from the ocean. And, a moment later, she heard Pete shouting commands, heard his steps crashing through the brush.

"Pete!" she called, and staggered toward him. "Pete!"

He opened his arms to her and she flung herself against him, sobbing.

"Good Lord, Julie!" he said, holding her tight. "Where did you come from? I sent you back with the others. I thought."

When she could control the sobbing, "I had to come back. Glad I did now—though I almost got caught."

His arms tightened, his shoulders hunched as if to shield her further. Then an explosion followed by another. Then another. The hillside up which she had just fought her way burst into flame.

Julie's Story

"YOU little fool," Pete growled—but he was kissing her, cradling her gently against his shoulder. "Five minutes more and you'd have been blown to glory."

For the moment, the touch of Pete's lips, the gentleness of his arms around her, took precedence over every other emotion. It wasn't until he'd released her, and she faced him in the red glowing light of the flames roaring on the hillside beyond that she remembered why she had had to find him.

"A ship torpedoed! Where?" Pete demanded, interrupting her. "Let's see."

And crashing along the trail, he found a spot where he could look out to seaward. There, still glowing under the growing pall of black smoke, was mute evidence of the ship's sinking.

"Damn them!" Pete swore savagely and Julie saw his face harden. "I was afraid this was more than the usual forest fire. The ranger was right, she was right. A beacon, huh. That loaded tanker must have made a target you could hit blindfolded. Nice work—for Japs."

He sat down heavily on a shaggy stump, pulled off his sweat-soaked hat, mopped his forehead. "And now, all we've got to do is find the boys that set the signal fires."

"I think I know who one of them is," Julie said, sagged wearily onto the log beside him.

"Who?"

"My would-be 'rescuer' of this morning."

Pete shrugged a laugh at her. "All right, Madam Inspector. Let's have it."

But when she'd told the whole story, pieced together from the night of Dawn's strange hysteria at her father's illness into a patchwork of glimpses of a man driving a green phaeton, of muddy boots on a chaise longue, of a mocking voice in the deep shadows near the deck-chair where she'd been trapped into unintentional eavesdropping, Pete was no longer laughing.

"Why in the devil didn't you tell me this before?" he demanded, facing her.

"Because you haven't considered my ideas worth listening to lately," she reminded him sharply. "Pete looked at her a moment. 'You're right, Julie. I'm sorry.' He was silent a moment. 'Let's hope for Dawn's sake, that her friend is a harmless romantic. Because if he isn't—'"

Ninety Hear Of Chemicals In Warfare

Boy Scout air raid messengers and members of the Civilian Defense Corps numbering 90 attended the class in chemical warfare conducted in the high school Wednesday evening by Victor VerMilyea, county director of such work, and his assistant, Robert Dunham.

Calvin Hall, Boy Scout executive, presented Clarence O. Swanson, who will head the Scouts messenger service. He announced the fire fighting class to be held at the same place next Wednesday night by Fire Chief Douglas Kropf; also the classes in basic training on Tuesday and Thursday evenings, with H. D. Harris and R. R. Young as instructors.

Mr. VerMilyea's explanation of chemical warfare agents included how and where such agents might be used by the enemy in attacks on our country and the importance of knowledge of them by civilian defense workers.

Description of the various agents, symptoms by which their presence may be determined and first aid treatment following such attacks were explained, together with use of gas masks and work of the decontamination squad. To conclude, a "sniff test" was given by Mr. VerMilyea and Mr. Dunham, with most of the audience participating.

Mr. Hall stated today that this class nearly completes the air raid messenger training, these boys having previously received instruction in the messenger's job, civilian defense organization, drill, first aid and fire defense. Those unable to receive such training earlier in the summer were asked to attend the classes to be held next week. Both classes are required for certification.

Following next week's training, these messengers will be certified and receive permanent assignments in place of the temporary ones now in force.

Care Taken Against New Fire Starting

It was not until 4:17 Wednesday afternoon that the firemen relaxed their vigilance at the building occupied by the Blue and White Restaurant which was damaged by fire yesterday morning. Every partition was checked and every pile of rubbish was gone over and wetted down to halt any incipient fire that might remain. Their work was rewarded yesterday afternoon when a blaze broke out in the basement made a pile of mops. This was soon stopped.

It is interesting to note that the supply of sugar and coffee for the restaurant went undamaged as the firemen reached them and put them out of harm's way. Other food supplies were also saved by work of the firemen.

Warren's Masonic lodges were busy during the time the firemen were on the job and coffee was served with cream and sugar to the firemen. Geraniums Restaurant also held open house for the firemen and served coffee and lunch.

Fireman Lane was the only one injured at the blaze during its progress and he sustained a cut on his right hand from glass which required medical attention. Fire Chief Kropf also received medical attention last night as he was suffering from the effects of smoke taken into his lungs during the fire.

An interesting spectator at the fire during its progress was George H. Deike, of Pittsburgh, who had been in Warren Tuesday night to attend the meeting of the Masons. Mr. Deike is head of the Mine Safety Supply Company of Pittsburgh and much of the fire fighting material used yesterday was made by his company.

The value of the portable electric light plant carried on the new ladder truck was also demonstrated as during the clean up work done by the firemen the light plant was in operation and proved most valuable under the trying conditions.

TIMES TOPICS

WRECK IN CORRY
Eight cars of a heavily-loaded eastbound Pennsylvania railroad freight train leaped the tracks today between First avenue and Center street in downtown Corry. The derailment tore up 150 feet of track, blocking traffic on the line, but none of the train crew was hurt. Other trains were routed over the Buffalo Division lines through the city. Railroad officials said they had not determined the cause of the accident, but expressed belief a coupling between two cars might have broken. S. W. White of Renova, was engineer of the train.

St. Marys, Oct. 8 (P)—Auditor General F. Clair Ross, Democratic candidate for governor, charged here that the Republican leadership by "vicious attacks" upon President Roosevelt and his conduct of the war has made the war an issue in the state campaign.

"This is the same gang which fought against every effort to prepare America for the crisis it now faces," Ross told a party rally yesterday. "It has always hated Roosevelt; it still hates him."

"And now, having jeopardized the very life of America by its short-sighted and partisan obstruction, it asks to be given another opportunity to hamstring the national government."

American Grown Lilies Available for Gardens

With the exception of a very few imported from England, all lily bulbs offered for planting in this country this fall were grown in America.

For many years before Pearl Harbor lily bulbs imported from Japan, which was the chief source, had proved unsatisfactory for garden use, and American production had been increasing.

While the supply is limited, there are enough to provide a few bulbs for everyone, and a few lilies will go a long way in providing garden beauty. Lilies are not effective in mass plantings. They are best used in small groups or even single plants, as accents at garden focal points.

Hardy lilies are best planted in the fall. Bulbs are dormant now and must spend the winter either in the ground or in cold storage. They are better off in the ground.

The notion that lilies are hard to grow has no basis in fact. Quite the reverse is true in the case of most varieties.

If your soil is a good sandy loam it should be suitable for most of the hardy lilies. They do best in a light soil perhaps because of its superior drainage. Most of the lilies dislike wet soil and will show immediately the effects of standing water. A good loam, rich in leaf mold, is good for them.

Do not treat the soil to make it acid, as you would for rhododendrons; and do not lime it. A neutral soil is best. Manure should not be used except as a top dressing and then it must be a year or more old and well rotted.

A balanced plant food is fine, and some varieties will need additional spring applications. Use one pint to a bushel of soil. Spade your bed deeply before setting the bulbs. If you think the ground will be frozen before the bulbs arrive, give the bed a mulch of leaves or straw to keep it from freezing until you can get the bulbs in.

A location where the base of the plant is in light shade is a good one for most lilies. While they dislike standing water, they also dislike drying out; and a summer mulch of peat moss or rotted leaves is appropriate.

Regal, or Royal Lily, One of the Best.

Depth of planting is important. Lilium candidum, canadense, maritimum and superbum should be planted only 3 to 4 inches deep; but the others should go in about four times the diameter of the bulb, usually from 8 to 10 inches.

Many lilies blossom in midsummer when there is a natural lull in garden color, and the lilies are more than welcome. We find ourselves admiring and depending upon them well into September.

Regal lily, a queen of lilies, should be in every garden, where its gorgeous pink striped flowers with golden throats are unsurpassed for beauty.

Clean up all old vegetable tops and destroy them. They too often harbor insect pests.

Peat moss is a fine mulch for late planted hardy perennials, shedding moisture well, and preventing heaving from thawing and freezing.

Spade tulip beds early. Bad weather may set in, which will make digging difficult.

Theatre Given High Praise For September Bond Sales

Sales of war savings bonds in September totaled $338,250,000, well above the $775,000,000 quota for the month, Secretary Morgenthau announced today. This figure includes sales amounting to $120,645,000 covered by last minute telegraphic reports of cash deposits at the 12 Federal Reserve Banks which will be included in the daily Treasury statement upon the receipt of the usual mail reports in the early days of October.

Hereafter monthly sales figures announced by the Treasury will be on the basis of such telegraphic reports instead of mail reports as heretofore, the secretary said.

Reports on cash deposits received at the Treasury in Washington during September on account of the sale of war savings bonds were $754,694,000, of which $37,085,000 represented reports received during the first days of September on account of August sales.

Secretary Morgenthau said that the September war bond campaign in which the motion picture industry had played a prominent part had been "an outstanding success."

The secretary expressed particular satisfaction with the steady growth of the payroll savings campaign which aims to have 30,000,000 income earners setting aside at least 10% of their pay in war bonds every pay day.

In September approximately 19,500,000 workers set aside a total of $265,000,000 out of payrolls, an average rate of 8% of all the workers participating. This compared with the August figure of 18,500,000 workers who set aside a total of $223,000,000 out of payrolls an average rate of 7.2% of pay.

Commenting on the September results, Secretary Morgenthau said, "The American people have responded patriotically to the nation's need for money with which to fight and win the war. With heavy income tax payments in September, we had expected a temporary decline in bond sales. Every previous September had been a bad month for bond sales ever since the old baby bonds first appeared in 1935. This September has been an exception and indicates that the American people are becoming increasingly aware of the seriousness of the nation's danger."

ing period. Health and accident insurance is provided.

After these men have successfully finished the glider pilot course at Warren, they will proceed to advanced training program for three months during which time they will be paid approximately $75.00 per month and sustenance. If they successfully complete this second course they will then enter the active service commissioned as Staff Sergeant at $144.00 per month and sustenance.

The army is utilizing the program to train glider pilots. The course will be conducted on a full time basis and will cover a period of eight weeks.

The course will include training at the Warren Airport under the direction of the King Air Service which has a contract with the Government for the Flight School. The ground school instructions under the management of the School District of Warren Borough will consist of 240 hours including the following subjects: mathematics, physics, civil air regulations, navigation, general servicing and operation of aircraft, code, military and physical training, aircraft identification, military science and discipline, and meteorology.

A quota of twenty-two men will be selected from the list of successful applicants.

The examination for applicants will be at 9 a. m. October 17 in the Study Hall in the Warren High School with Dr. Margaret Elliott in charge.

Applications for this training should be made by individuals 27 to 36 years of age to Mr. King of the Air Service or to John G. Rossman, Superintendent of Schools, who is serving as Coordinator of the program.

Rally Day and Promotion Day will be observed next Sunday at the Presbyterian Sunday school, with a program at the Sunday school hour.

Robert J. Weld left Monday to spend an indefinite time with his brother, Fred Weld, and family, in the state of Washington. Mr. Weld has been in very poor health for several years and his many friends hope the change of climate may prove beneficial. Mr. Weld has been an active member in the Presbyterian church and Sunday school and is senior member of the elders, and in appreciation of his services was presented a Bible at the morning service Sunday. Fulton McKay represented the session making the presentation.

Members of the high school enjoyed a delightful party Wednesday after school and evening. The school was divided into groups for a treasure hunt, after which a delicious hot dinner was served on the campus, followed by games.

Rev. and Mrs. Carl Perrin and daughter, Ruth, left Sunday afternoon to go to Mansfield, Ohio, to meet their son, A. C. Stuart Perrin, who is stationed at Columbus, Miss., to spend a few hours with him before he returns to the training field. Stuart had acted as escort for the body of his roommate, who was killed. The parents of the boy lived at Bellville, Ohio.

Mrs. Paul Carlburg and family have gone to live in Buffalo, where Mr. Carlburg has been employed for several years. They did not move their furniture as they do not expect to make their permanent home there.

Mrs. F. A. Schoonover and Mrs. Carleton Foss spent two days last week in Meadville, where they attended a district meeting of the W. S. C. S.

Several persons from this community attended the Republican luncheon meeting in Warren Friday.

Harold Barnes, who has conducted a service station here for several years, has gone to Sheffield where he is employed. The station will be operated by a younger brother, George.

Mrs. Bess Beedle, who is employed in Buffalo, spent the week-end here.

American League President Says 1943 Prospects Good

Elimination of Fourth Road Trip and Shorter Season Are Anticipated by Will Harridge

Chicago, Oct. 8.—(P)—Will Harridge, president of the American League, said today prospects for a full 1943 baseball season still looked "good" despite transportation handicaps and the call to military service of many players. However, he indicated several changes were in order. These included a contemplated switch from four road trips a season for each club to three, and the possibility of a shorter season. Harridge said that the clubs would save the cost of a fourth road trip and would ease transportation difficulties which caught up with baseball near the season's end. "But all these things will have to wait until the December meetings," he declared. "In the meantime, discussions between the individual clubs and the two major leagues as a whole will be carried on by mail."

Other than to say "there is always the possibility," Harridge would not comment on reports the baseball meetings, scheduled for New York, would be held in more centrally located Chicago.

Calling 1942's war time summer season "better than we expected" and one in which "we solved a lot of problems," Harridge had this to say of 1943:

"If conditions are the same next year, we'll be able to have a full 24 Sunday season again. The American League already is represented in the armed forces by more than 60 players and there will be more. But 1943 looks good."

For, if my perspicacity has not given out (Ed. Note: And he doesn't mean capacity), this will be a large week for service establishments here and there. With such fine teams as Iowa Pre-Flight, Great Lakes and Georgia Pre-Flight—going into action against major foes, it's a good thing your correspondent is an old soldier.

My suggested parlay to you, gentle reader, is to play all the Army and Navy teams to win.

Closer games on the list? I forecast Navy's victory over Princeton 7-6. According to my astronomical calculations, this game will be decided by a sacrifice fly Illinois 3, Minnesota 2. Har-rumph! Perhaps I amaze you by choosing Bernie Bierman's Seahawks to macerate Michigan, 13-6. Some-

Columbia Senior Takes First Much Color Place Among Ground Gainers At Game Here Saturday

By ARNOLD DERLITZKI
Chicago, Oct. 8.—(P)—The passing prowess of Columbia's Paul Governali has swept him into first place among the nation's leading ground gainers with the football season little more than two weeks old.

First figures from the American Football Statistical Bureau, which has shifted its offices from Seattle to Chicago, showed today that in two games the Columbia senior had accounted for a total of 454 yards from both rushing and passing.

The fourth best passer among collegians last year, Governali this year has whipped the football 411 yards in 28 attempts against Maine and Ft. Monmouth. The rest of his total, 43 yards, came in 24 rushing tries.

Since the statistical bureau ranks passers on total number of completions, his passing efforts landed him second in this department behind Ray Evans of Kansas who in three games has completed 31 of 66 attempts for 222 yards. Four were intercepted. Evans' efforts are the more remarkable since he is playing with a club that has lost three consecutive games.

Second to Governali in total offense was Dick Fisher, former Ohio State player now competing with Bernie Bierman's Iowa Naval Air Corps. In three games Fisher has totaled 425 yards: 216 coming in 36 rushes and 209 more in 16 attempted passes.

The No. 1 ball carrier, however, is Don Griffin, Illinois junior, who has sped 324 yards over a two game stretch. This total also landed him ninth among the total offense leaders. The No. 2 ball carrier was Jack Field of Texas with 280 yards in three games.

SUNDAY GAMES ARE OPPOSED BY P. I. A. A.

Harrisburg, Oct. 8.—(P)—The Pennsylvania Inter-Scholastic Athletic Association today asked high schools not to play Sunday football games.

Secretary Edmund Wicht said resolutions concerning Sabbath contests would be considered at the association's December meeting.

Northumberland county church groups voiced opposition after Mt. Carmel Catholic played Kulpmont and Coal Township played Mt. Carmel Township in Sunday encounters.

Both Kulpmont and Coal Township now have assured the PIAA that they will play only on weekdays, Wicht said.

Covering The Sports Front!

By BOB JOHNSON
Warren has sometimes been called an anti-sports town and as far as fans' lack of interest is concerned (aside from high school sports), sometimes deserved the name—But, taking the sports participants, a very high percentage would result, if you were to compile an average and that name would no longer hold water—to those masses this pillar is dedicated.

Baseball dropped in the early season, but as time grew short in late August, a terrific rivalry had been drummed up and the city league fared well, although past years have been better—those fellows deserve recognition—The Forge and State Hospital as usual turned out their good teams—Golf received a good play—there have been any number of competitive matches this year. Two, played between the Country Club and the Publix boys, resulted in a feud that may be an annual affair from here in—Timmie Creal, as you know captured the championship there and well deserved—In the 'pay as you play', John Pawk stood above the field—(Even though defeated by Vito 'The Mudder' Brindis)—his form and low scores have been worthy of many a compliment—Aside from that it looks as though next year's stymie will not be the lack of balls, but the 'help' problem.

Tennis started out with a bang this year, and although no important matches resulted, a goodly number participated—And bowling, what a world of talent has developed there—the alleys closed later and opened earlier this year than ever before—Every slide in town is crackling with activity and with gas rationing now a reality, this year will top all—Harry Shawkey, king of the 'Simon Pures' has reported a slump this year, only taking 188 bass to date—that's compared to 800 last year—did he say only? That isn't bad for angling between floods—Softball almost went unobserved—this sport has rapidly climbed to one of the fastest and most interesting in town—and wait till next year—That should take care of the 'anti'.

Into the present—The skids are being greased for one of the powerhouses when Russell Field becomes battleground Saturday and when the smoke clears—well, we don't like to say—just leave it to Major Hoople in today's edition—Physical Director Parmelee of the 'Y' reports there isn't anything definite for the basketball league as yet, but let's see you at the meeting Friday and settle things—Ralph Edwards, an announcer for the series, has the pleasure of watching a Yankee fan push a ball around sportsman's park with his nose, while reciting 'Casey at the Bat' as the result of the series—Flash Gordon has just about clinched the title of the 'goat'—Wonder if Joe is back from New York yet?

Irvine
Irvine, Sept. 30—Anyone who thinks was and tires are rationed should be traveling the streets of our town for the past few days.

The road people have been making a blacktop from the railroad by the shop, down past the hall under the tracks to the other road. This interfered with the parking of shop cars on their lots so they are all in town, hundreds of them. Erie avenue from John Freeman's home down to the end by the pavilion is parked full on both sides and Hazel street both sides and on Church street and in peoples yards and all over. They say the road will soon be done.

Richard 'Dick' Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Johnson left Sunday morning for Ann Arbor, Mich., where he will enter college and register for pre-medical work.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hucks-bone spent Sunday with their son, Harry and wife in Pleasant Township and also visited other places.

Mrs. Allie Johnson of Warren spent Sunday with her sister, Mrs. Floyd Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Tittlo entertained a party of relatives from Emporium for several days and their daughter, Frances returned home with them Sunday.

Dick Christie who has been with the Navy at Philadelphia for some time spent last week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Christie. He returned to Philadelphia Sunday and Monday was to leave by plane for Panama Canal.

Miss Onnolee Lawson of this place spent Sunday with her father at the Warren Hospital for appendicitis is reported as getting along as well as can be expected.

almost in half, while Commander G. W. Anderson of the navy bureau of aeronautics reported that "peak" production probably would be reached about December of next year.

In addition to the naval allocations, the measure carried $5,000,000 for the office of civilian defense, $25,000,000 for the office of war information, $19,000,000 to produce rubber from the guayule plant, $10,303,000 for the war manpower commission, $5,200,000 for the office of defense transportation, and $5,000,000 to promote friendly relations between this country and other nations in the western hemisphere.

In granting the Office of War Information an even $25,000,000, approximately $2,000,000 less than it had requested—the appropriation committee declared that "wars are conducted on the three important fronts of military operations, economic controls and the dissemination of psychological information. The United States, with the other United Nations, must adequately pursue all three if victory is to be attained."
